Most of Minnesota lies within the USDA hardiness zones 3 and 4. Cold winters kill or harm trees and branches, while short growing seasons prevent certain crops from properly maturing. In spite of these shortcomings, a surprising diversity of new and unusual crops can grow here. This book provides production and marketing information; as well as an honest look at the commercial potential of crops such as currants, gooseberries, haskap, Saskatoon, sour cherries, aronia, chokecherries, and more.
