

“Blazing Trails through the Jungle of Food Regulations”

“Blazing Trails through the Jungle of Food Regulations” is a project to bring training about local food regulations to every county in Minnesota. The goal is to make sure the entire state has access to information and resources about how to navigate food regulations that pertain to local food, in order to help individual food entrepreneurs and local food systems move forward.

What we will do...

Train farm educators, food system advocates and educators, and leaders in the agriculture and food communities on the basics of regulation of local food enterprises and systems.
